

MICHAEL J. KIRKER

The University of Chicago
Department of Economics
1126 E. 59th Street
Chicago, IL 60637

Citizenship: New Zealand
Email: mkirker@uchicago.edu
Website: <http://michaelkirker.net>

EDUCATION	Ph.D. in Economics, University of Chicago	In progress
	M.A. in Economics, University of Chicago Fields: Applied Macroeconomics, and Trade & Growth	2012
	B.C.A. (Hons) in Economics, Victoria University of Wellington Majors: Economics, Econometrics, Money & Finance. First-class honours.	2008
RESEARCH INTERESTS	Primary: Growth, Macroeconomics Secondary: Trade, Monetary Policy
PUBLICATIONS	Floetotto M., M. Kirker, and J. Stroebel, "Government Intervention in the Housing Market: Who Wins, Who Loses?", Journal of Monetary Economics , vol. 80, 2016. Albertini J., G. Kamber, and M. Kirker, "Estimated Small Open Economy Model With Frictional Unemployment", Pacific Economic Review , vol. 17(2), 2012.
WORKS IN PROGRESS	"Labor Mobility as a Channel for Productivity Diffusion" A complete list of papers is available on my website (http://michaelkirker.net)
TEACHING EXPERIENCE	ECON 332: Theory of Income III , University of Chicago Teaching assistant for Prof. Cassey Mulligan. Part of the Ph.D. core macroeconomics sequence	2013 & 2014
	ECON 200: The Elements of Economic Analysis , University of Chicago Teaching assistant for Grace Tsiang. Intermediate microeconomics.	2015
	ECON 198: Introduction to Microeconomics , University of Chicago Teaching assistant for Allen Sanderson.	2014 & 2015
	ECON 199: Introduction to Macroeconomics , University of Chicago Teaching assistant for Allen Sanderson.	2014 & 2015
OTHER EXPERIENCE	Visiting Researcher , The Treasury (Wellington, New Zealand)	2015-2016
	Research Assistant , Booth Business School, University of Chicago For Assistant Professor Johannes Stroebel.	2012-2013

Economic Analyst/Senior Analyst , The Reserve Bank of New Zealand (Wellington, New Zealand) Research Team and Modelling Team. Returned for fixed-term internships in 2012 and 2013.	2008-2011
Summer Internship , The Treasury (Wellington, New Zealand) Macroeconomic Policy Group.	2006-2007